RAIN DROPS.

The silver rain, the golden rain, the rippling, dancing, laughing rain!
Stringing its pearls on the green leaf's edge,
Fringing with gems the brown rock's ledge,
Spinning a veil for the water-fall,
And building an amber-colored wall
Across the West where the sunbeams fall:
The gentle rain, in the shaded lane—the pattering, peering, winning rain!

The noisy rain, the marching rain, the rushing tread of the heavy rain!
Pouring its rivers from out the blue,
Down on the grass where the daisies grew,
Darting in clouds of angry drops
Across the hills and green tree-tops,
And kissing at last in its giant glee,
The foaming lips of the great green sea;
The fierce, wild rain, the riotous rain, the boisterous dashing, shouting rain!

The still night rain, the solemn rain, the soldier-step of the midnight rain!
With its measured beat on the roof o'er head,
With its tidings sweet of the faithful dead,
Whispers from loves who are laid asleep
Under the sod where the myrtles creep,
Calling bouquets from the sun-lit past,
Of flowers too sweet, too fair to last:
The faithful rain, the untiring rain, the cooling, sobbing, weeping rain!

The sulky rain, the spiteful rain, the bothering, pilfering, thieving rain!
Creeping so lazily over the sky,
A leaden mask o'er a bright blue eye,
And shutting in with its damp, strong bands,
The rosy faces in curls a nd bands
Of girls who think with unwonted frown
Of the charming laces and things down town,
That might as well for the tiresome rain,
Be in the rose-land of Alnashain.
The horrid rain, the tedious rain, the never-ending, dingy rain!

"KNICKERBOCKER."

Miscellaneous.

MINNOWS WITH SILVER TAILS.

BY JEAN INGELOW.

THERE was a cuckoo clock hanging in Tom Turner's cottage. When it struck one, Tom's wife laid the baby in the cradle and took the sauce pan off the fire, from which came a very savory smell.

Her two little children, who had been playing in the open door-way, ran to the table and began softly to drum upon it with their pewter spoons, looking eagerly at their mother, as she turned a nice little piece of pork into a dish and set greens and potatoes around it. They brought the salt, then set a chair for their father, brought their own stools, and pulled their mother's rocking chair close to the table.

"Run to the door, Billy," said the mother, "and see if father is coming." Billy ran to the door, and after the fashion of little children, looked first the right way and then the wrong way, but no father was seen.

Presently his mother followed him, and shaded her eyes with her hand, for the sun was hot. "If father doesn't come soon," she observed, "the apple dumplings will be too much done by a deal."

"There he is," cried the little boy, "he is coming round by the wood; and now he is going over the bridge. Oh, father, make haste, and have some apple dumplings."

"Tom," said his wife as he came near, "art thou tired to-day?"

"Uncommon tired," said Tom, and he threw himself on the bench in the shadow of the thatch,

"Has anything gone wrong?" said his wife. "What's the matter?"

"Matter?" said Tom. "Is anything the matter? The matter is this, mother, that I'm a miserable, hard worked slave!" and he clasped his hands upon his knees, and muttered, in a deep voice which frightened the children—"a miserable slave."

"Bless us!" said his wife who could not make out what he meant.

"A miserable, ill-used slave," continued Tom, "and always have been."

"Always have been?" said his wife; "why, father, I thought thou used to say, at the election time, thou was a free-born Briton."

"Women have no business with politics," said Tom, getting up rather sulkily. And whether it was the force of habit, or the smell of the dinner, that made him do so, has not been ascertained; but it is certain that he walked into the house, ate plenty of pork and greens, and then took a tolerable share in demolishing the apple dumplings."

When the children were gone out to play, his wife said to him:

Tom, I hope thou and master have'nt had words to day?"

"Master!" said Tom; "yes, a pretty master he has been; and a pretty slave I have been. Don't talk to me of masters!"

"Oh, Tom, Tom," cried his wife; "but he's been a good master to you; fourteen shillings a week, regular wages—that's not a thing to make a sneer at; and think how warm the children are lapped up o' winter nights, and you with as good shoes to your feet as ever kept one out of the mud."

"What of that?" said Tom; "isn't my labor worth the money? I'm not beholden to my employer. He gets as good from me as he gives."

"Very like, Tom. There's not a man for miles round that can match you for a graft; and as to early peas—but if master can't do without you, I'm sure you can't do without him. Oh, dear, to think you and he should have hard words!"

"We've had 'no words'" said Tom, impatiently; "but I'm sick of being at another's beck and call. It's 'Tom, do this,' and 'Tom, do that,' and nothing but work, work, from Monday morning till Saturday night; and I was thinking as I walked over to Squire Morton's to ask for the turnip seed for master, I was thinking, Sally, that I am nothing but a poor working man after all. In short, I'm a slave, and my spirit won't stand it."

So saying, Tom flung himself out at the cottage door, and his wife thought he was going back to his work as usual. But she was mistaken; he walked to the wood, and there, when he came to the border of a little tinkling stream, he sat down and began to brood over his grievances. It was a very hot day.

"Now, I'll tell you what," said Tom to himself, "it's a great deal pleasanter sitting here in the shade than broiling over celery trenches; and then thinning of wall fruit, with a baking sun at one's back, and a hot wall before one's eyes. But I'm a miserable slave. I must either work or see 'em starve; a very hard lot it is to be a working man."

"But it is not only the work that I complain of, but being obliged to work as he pleases. Is enough to spoil any man's temper to be told to dig up those asparagus beds just when they were getting to be the very pride of the parish. And for what? Why, to make room for Madam's new gravel walk, that she may not wet her feet going over the grass. Now, I ask you," continued Tom, still talking to himself, "whether that isn't enough to spoil any man's temper."

"Ahem!" said a voice close to him.

Tom started, and, to his great surprise, saw a small man, about the size of his own baby, sitting composedly at his elbow. He was dressed in green—green hat, green coat, and green shoes. He had very bright black eyes, and they twinkled very much as he looked at Tom and smiled.

"Servant sir," said Tom, edging himself a little farther off.

"Miserable slave," said the small man, "art thou so far lost to the noble sense of freedom as that thy very salutation acknowledges a mere stranger as thy master?"

"What are you?" said Tom, "and how dare you call me a slave?"

"Tom," said the small man with a knowing look, "don't speak roughly. Keep your rough words for your wife, my man; she is bound to bear them—what else is she for, in fact!"

"I'll thank you to let my affairs alone," interrupted Tom, shortly.

"Tom, I'm your friend; I think I can help you out of your difficulty. I admire your spirit. Would I demean myself to work for a master, and attend to all his whims?"

As he said this the small man stooped and looked very earnestly into the stream. Drip, drip, drip, went the water over a little fall in the stones, and wet the cresses till they shone in the night, while the leaves fluttered overhead and chequered the moss with glittering spots of its sunshine. Tom watched the small man with earnest attention as he turned over the leaves of the cresses. At last he saw him snatch something which looked like a little fish out of the water and put it in his pocket.

"It's my belief, Tom," he said, resuming the conversation, "that you have been puzzling your head with what people call Political Economy."

"Never heard of such a thing," said Tom. "But I've been thinking that I don't see why I'm to work any more than those that employ me."

"Why, you see, Tom, you must have money. Now it seems to me that there are but four ways of getting money. There's stealing money—"

"Which don't suit me," interrupted Tom.

"Very good. Then there's borrowing—"

"Which I don't want to do."

"And There's begging—"

"No, thank you," said Tom stoutly.

"And there's giving money's worth for the money, that is to say, work, labor."

"Your words are as fine as a sermon," said Tom.

"But look here, Tom," proceeded the man in green drawing his hand out of his pocket, and showing a little dripping fish in his palm, "what do you call this?"

"I call it a very small minnow," said Tom.

"And do you see anything particular about its tail?"

"It looks uncommon bright," said Tom, stooping to look at it.

"It does," said the man in green, "and now I'll tell you a secret, for I'm resolved to be your friend. Every minnow in this stream, they are very scarce, mind you—but every one of them has a silver tail."

"You don't say so," exclaimed Tom, opening his eyes very wide; "fishing for minnows and being one's own master would be a great deal pleasanter than the sort of life I've been leading this many a day."

"Well, the secret as to where you get them, is yours and much good may it do you," said the man in green. "Farewell, I wish you joy of your freedom." So saying, he walked away, leaving Tom on the brink of the stream, full of joy and pride. He went to his master, and told him that he had an opportunity for bettering himself, and rose with the dawn and went to work to search for minnows. But of all the minnows in the world never were any so nimble as those with silver tails. They were very shy, too, and had as many turns and doubles as a hare; what a life they led him! They made him troll up the stream for miles; then, just as he thought his chase was at an end, and he was sure of them they would leap quite out of the water and dart down the stream again like little silver arrows. Miles and miles he went, tired and wet and hungry. He came home late in the evening completely wearied and foot-sore, with only three minnows in his pocket, each with a silver tail.

"But at any rate," he said to himself, as he lay down in his bed, "though they led me a pretty life, and I have to work harder than ever, yet I certainly am free; no man can order me about now."

This went on for a whole week; he worked very hard, but on Sunday afternoon he had caught fourteen minnows.

"If it wasn't for the pride of the thing," he said to himself, "I'd have no more to do with fishing for minnows. This is the hardest work I ever did. I am quite a slave to them. I rush up and down, I dodge in and out, I splash myself in the sun, and all for the sake of a dumb thing that gets the better of me with a wag of its fins. But it's no use standing here talking; I must set off to the town and sell them, or Sally will wonder why I don't bring her the week's money." So he walked to the town, and offered his fish for sale as great curiosities.

"Very pretty," said the first people he showed them to; "but they never bought anything that was not useful."

"Were they good to eat?" asked the woman at the next house.

"No!"

Then they would not have them.

"Much too dear," said a third.

"And not so very curious," said a fourth; "but they hoped he had come by them honestly."

At the fifth house they said:

"No, no; they were not quite so silly as to believe there were fish in the world with silver tails; if there had been they should often have heard of them before."

At the sixth house they were such a very long time in turning over his fish, in pinching their tails, bargaining and dressing them, that he ventured to remonstrate and requested that they would make some haste. Thereupon they said if he did not choose to wait their pleasure they would not purchase at all. So they shut the door upon him, and this roused his temper, he spoke rather roughly at the next two houses, and was dismissed at once as a very rude, uncivil person.

But after all his fish were really great curiosities; and when he had exhibitted them all over the town, set them out in all lights, praised their perfections, and taken immense pains to conceal his patience and temper, he at length contrived to sell them, and receive exactly fourteen shillings for them and no more.

"Now, I tell you what, Tom Turner," he said to himself, in my opinion you've been making a fool of yourself, and I only hope Sally will not find it out. You was tired of being a working man, that man in green has cheated you into doing the hardest week's work you ever done, by making you believe it was more freelike and easier. Well, you said you didn't mind it, because you had no master; but I've found out this afternoon, Tom, and I don't mind your knowing it, that every one of those customers of yours was your master just the same. Why! you were at the beck of every man, woman and child that came near you—obliged to be in a good temper, too, which was aggravating."

"Look, Tom," said the man in green, starting up in his path, "I know you were all working men, and you must all please your customers. Your master was your customer; what he bought of you was your work. Well, you must let the work be such as will please the customer."

"All workingmen? how do you make that out? said Tom, thinking of the fourteen shillings in his hand. "Is my master a working man? and has he got a master of his own? Nonsense?"

"No nonsense at all—he works with his head; he keeps his books and manages his great works. He has many masters, else why was he nearly ruined last year?"

"He was nearly ruined because he made some new fangled kind of patterns at his works, and people would not buy them," said Tom.

"Well, in a way of speaking then, he works to please his masters, poor fellow! He is, as one may say, a fellow-servant, and plagued with very awkward masters. So I should not mind his being my master, and I think I'll go and tell him so."

"I would, Tom," said the man in green. "Tell him you have not been able to better yourself, and you have no objection now to dig up the asparagus bed."

So Tom trudged home to his wife, gave her the money he had earned, got his old master to take him back, and kept a profound secret his adventure with the man in green, and the fish with silver tails.

EXTRAORDINARY MATCH OF PISTOL AGAINST SHOT GUN.—On the 25th of May, Captain Travis, the celebrated "pistol shot," shot at birds on the rise from the trap, with a pistol, against a shot gun. The day was windy and not favorable to good shooting. The captain's opponent was Henry Crosthwaite, who used a shot-gun, muzzle loading, cartridges each one ounce and a quarter. He was allowed 35 yards rise, and 10 yards boundary. Mr. Crosthwaite opened the match, killing the first 4 birds in succession, missing the 5th, the 6th falling 15 yards from the trap, the 7th killed, the 8th a miss, and the 9th and 10th killed, making in all 7 killed out of 10 birds. When Capt. Travis took his position the betting was 100 to 20 on the shot-gun. The 1st bird he missed, 2d, 3d and 4th killed, the 5th a miss, the 6th killed, the 7th a miss. The case was desperate. The captain could not win, but by killing the remaining 5 birds, he could make the match a draw. The word is given, the pigeon rises from the trap, wings made swifter and stronger by the hope of freedom. Whiz! bang! a little cloud of smoke, a thud on the ground of a falling body, and the eighth bird is added to the score of the killed. The ninth rises, the sharp report of the pistol is again heard, and another bird drops like a stone to the ground. No time for faltering now. Pull the string. The captive is free. It is leaving its prison-house behind. Frightened, desperate, it springs into the air with the swiftness of an arrow speeding from the bow tightly sprung by athletic hands. The eye flashes along the short barrel. Hark! the report—and the winged flight of fear is suddenly arrested. The aim true, and the ball has performed its mission well! The bird falls within the boundary dying—dead; and the wind keeps on its course, but now freighted with hundreds of cheers, for Capt Travis has killed his seven birds, tied his opponent, and the judges pronounce the match a draw.—N. Y. Sunday News.

WHO WINS?—Two Dutchmen once got in a dispute about the English language, each contending that he could use it the best. They made a bet, at length, of a barrel of Lager and forty pounds of Sweitzer cheese, and appointed a judge to decide between them, and accordingly they began:

"Vell, Chon," said the first, "did it rain to-morrow?"

"I shall think it vash," said John.

Wasn't that Judge in a quandary?

Letter from John Quill.

GENERAL BUTLER'S INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, June 5th.—It will be perceived from the following report of the proceedings of the investigating committee to-day, that General Butler is pushing his inquiry vigorously, and with a prospect of success. It is evident from the following examination, that some startling disclosures will be made concerning the means used to secure the votes of the renegade Senators for the President's acquittal.

Mr. Joseph Pidgeon was placed upon the stand to-day and examined by Mr. Butler.

Mr. Pidgeon having been sworn, Mr. Butler produced a telegraphic dispatch, and said:

"Joseph do you recognize that?"

"Yes sir."

"It is in your handwriting, is it not?"

"It is."

"Oblige me by reading it to the committee."

"I'd rather not," said Joseph blushing.

"Sirrah! you must. You admit of having sent it?"

"Yes sir; but I don't like to read it. It don't concern anybody."

"We'll see about that. Are you going to read it or ain't you?"

Pshaw! that's got nothing to with impeachment, I tell you."

"Caitiff! remember where you are. Don't answer back. I will read to the Committee and expose your villainy."

"Oh look here now, don't go to reading that thing out loud here, you know I——"

"Silence ser-lave! Gentlemen this dispatch reads as follows: 'Be Wary Smith Pres't Johnson's all right.'"

"O Pshaw!" said Mr. Pidgeon, "that ain't there. You don't know how to read writing. You ought to spell all the hard words. That says: 'Miss Mary Smith—Staid at Johnson's all night.' Johnson keeps a grocery and lives on C street. He's a friend of mine."

"S'death! Pidgeon, remember you're on oath. If you don't tell the truth I'll have you manacled and placed in the dungeon beneath the capitol mout!"

"But I tell you, you don't read it right. 'Be Wary Smith?' Ha, ha! Why that's ridiculous; yes it is."

"Young man, I am not to be trifled with. On your oath now, who is Smith?"

"Never you mind now who Smith is."

"See here, Pidgeon, I'm dangerous when I get mad. If you don't answer my questions, I'll confine you in Vinnie Beam's room, and get her to make a statue of you; I will, upon my sacred word of honor," said Butler with a fiendish scowl.

Joe Pidgeon shuddered, and the cold sweat stood upon his brow at the thought of the frightful humiliation and suffering of this punishment.

"But I tell you," said he, "that you don't know how to read. That's addressed to Miss Mary Smith."

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Butler, rising, "we will trifle with this perjured traitor no longer. In this letter is contained the evidence of the infamy of three Senators. I have at last unravelled this vile plot. I will read you the whole of the despatch.

Be Wary Smith—President Johnson's all right. Senator Fowler's consented. Check for ten thousand

NATURE and History curiously approved each other's records in the case of an old elm tree cut down in Boston the other day. The town record shows that the elm was planted by vote of the town of Boston in the year 1733—that is, 134 years ago; and the annual layer of rings of the tree, which were plainly visible after its trunk had been severed, were counted to the number of 131 thus exactly corresponding with the date at which it was planted. It appears that some of the incidents of history are trustworthy.

PINS should be cheap, from the rapidity with which they are manufactured. A man in Hartford, Conn., has invented a machine by which between eighty and ninety millions of pins can be made in a day of ten hours. According to this statement, 144,000 can be made every minute, or 2,400 every second. It is almost as impossible to conceive of the rapidity with which these machines make pins, as it is to determine what becomes of them when made. What does become of all the pins?

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1868.

☞ THE COLUMBIAN has the Largest Circulation in Columbia and adjoining counties of any paper published here, and is also a much larger sheet than any of its cotemporaries; and is therefore the best medium for advertising in this section of the State.

County Convention.

BY reference to our "political" heading it will be seen that the Delegate Elections take place on the First Day of August, and the County Convention assembles on Monday, August Third.

Honest in all their convictions, devoted to their regular and unbroken organization; we are sure the people will now as heretofore, protect themselves from the designs of evil men and honor themselves by maintaining their ancient integrity.

The history of the past will not be forgotten, and the people will be true to their reputation, to their traditions and to themselves.

Our Ticket.

IN THE COLUMBIAN of June 19th, we stated our preferences for the nomination of President and Vice-President and on the 9th of July the Democratic National Convention ratified that preference by putting in nomination the very gentlemen whose names had been suggested in our paper three weeks before. We are highly gratified at this result. And more highly gratified still at the unanimity with which the result was achieved. The only paper in the United States which made that combination, THE COLUMBIAN, points to it proudly as showing its intimate and deep sympathy with the heart and voice of the great Democratic Party.

The lead of THE COLUMBIAN is always in the right direction. In the interest of the whole party, and for its harmony and success, we constantly labor. Never turning aside from our great purpose, supported and sustained by the people; we hope to chronicle this fall the brilliant success of the ticket just nominated, and the final overthrow of radicalism.

Rents.

A DESCRIPTION of the new Tammany Hall on West Fourteenth Street New York is to be found in the Campaign World. The cost is nearly $400,000, and to cover that sum a Mortgage of $225,000 was given, payable in twenty years. The Committee reported that the rents of the building would be sufficient within that time, to pay not only the interest, but the whole principal.

That is just what the new Hall, corner of Main & Market, Sts. Bloomsburg, is expected to do; and just what it will do. It will be No. 1. in all its features, and will be a capital investment.

Ratification Meeting.

A MEETING of the Democratic and Conservative citizens of this place, was held on Saturday evening last to ratify the nomination of the Democratic candidates, Horatio Seymour of New York for President, F. P. Blair, Jr., of Missouri, for Vice-President. The meeting was called to order by Sheriff Millard, after which the following officers were chosen: Wm. B. Koons, Esq., President; John A. Funston and Michael Walter, Vice-Presidents; C. B. Brockway and W. H. Jacoby, Secretaries. The meeting was then addressed by Col. John G. Freeze, in an earnest and forcible speech. He was followed by C. G. Barkley and W. H. Shoemaker, Esqrs. If the sentiments expressed by the speakers are forwarded by the Democracy of this county with earnest and zealous labor—active and methodical exertions—there will be no difficulty in rolling up a larger majority this Fall than has ever been done before.

False Pretences.

THE Radical Press pretend to be much horrified at the fact that several prominent Confederate Generals were delegates to the Democratic National Convention. We think it right, and proper they should be there. Why keep up this unnatural fratricidal strife between the sections? Do our opponents wish to engender another war by their fanatical oppression of our defeated enemies? Is our nation so strong that we can afford to alienate the affections and allegiance of ten millions of our citizens? Even monarchical governments deal more leniently with rebellious, and at this day in England it matters not in the estimation of the people whether one's ancestors fought for York or Lancaster—for Cromwell or King.

But we contend that our opponents are acting hypocritically in this matter. The leading rebels have been pardoned through the intercession of the Radicals themselves. Longstreet, Lee's right hand man,—the General who hung the North Carolinians for deserting to the Union Army—has given in his adhesion to Radical policy, and now he is one of their pets, "a brave, magnanimous man." Joseph E. Brown, one of Secession's most fiery leaders, and Rebel Governor of Georgia was a delegate to the Chicago Grant Convention, and was lionized by the whole Radical Convention. Ben. Butler, the now trusted leader of this party, voted in Charleston Convention in 1860, 57 times to nominate Jeff. Davis for President of this Country, and Horace Greeley, their pet editor, bailed him out when confined under the charge of treason! Out on such canting hypocricy!

Who's "Little?"

SOME Wilkes-Barre wag, signing himself "Lieut. George Little, formerly of the 143d Pa. V.," hoaxes Forney's Press with a story that seven killed and twenty wounded residents of "Nigger Hill," were offered as a sacrifice by the "fierce Democracie" on receiving the news of Seymour's nomination. Also, that "the houses of Mr. David Fairchild, George Reese, and other well-known Union men in the village of Kingston, one mile from here, have been stoned, shot into, and their inmates forced to take refuge in the house of their neighbors, and call upon the authorities and citizens for protection."

The Press showed some "greenness," we cannot but think, in being taken in by the story.—Scranton Republican.

The same Press manufactures its "Southern outrages" in the same manner.

THE Senate has confirmed the nomination of Mr. Evarts as Attorney General.

Hints to Political Meetings.

As the season for political meetings approaches, it may be well to reproduce the following excellent advice given by Horace Greeley, some years ago, which Democrats might do well to heed:

1. Do not fix the day for your meeting and then look up your speakers—they will already, perhaps, have been engaged elsewhere for that very day—but secure your speakers first. Let them fix the day.

2. Two prominent speakers with the local aid at your command, are amply sufficient for any one mass meeting. Let the people understand these can be relied on, and do not load your bills with an array of great names only to disappoint your audience.

3. Have your meetings if possible, indoors. One indoor meeting, even if packed, is worth half a dozen outdoor gatherings. The former is comparatively easy and the latter difficult for a speaker to control.

4. If you must have outdoor gatherings, then seek the grove or woods, and fail not to erect a stand for your speakers, and cover it with boards, and with nothing else. Canvas absorbs and deadens the voice, while with nothing above the speaker's head, the voice will waste in the air above, and in five cases out of six he will break down.

5. Always put down upon your platform, whether in or out of doors, a piece of coarse carpet to stand upon. Never cover with oil cloth, unless you expect your speakers to be lifeless and dull.

6. Consume as little time as possible in preliminaries, in marching and countermarching. Get your procession upon the ground with dispatch and proceed at once to the business of the meeting.

7. Remember your speakers, especially the more prominent ones, have families to support. Their time is valuable, and it costs them money to travel on railroads and stay at hotels. "Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn."

Negro Equality.

REPUBLICANS who are in the habit of denying that they or their party are in favor of negro suffrage and equality, should be convinced by the fact that the party has attempted to fasten it on every State in the Union, and as they hold despotic power over the Southern States and the Territories they have fastened it upon them without their consent. Not only this, but they are now urging them for the highest offices. In another column we give a letter of Senator Sumner urging his Radical friends in South Carolina to send a full-blooded negro to the U. S. Senate! We now republish from the Scranton Republican an editorial on the induction of the negro Dunn into office as Lieut. Gov. of Louisiana. Is not the Republican party in favor of negro supremacy?

NEGROES IN OFFICE.

Mr. Dunn a respectable and intelligent colored man, was on Saturday installed as Lieutenant Governor of Louisiana, and took his seat as presiding officer of the Senate of that chivalrous State.

We have not yet felt the earthquake nor any other of the dire portents which our Democratic friends have told us were to follow such events as this.

Mr. Dunn is the first negro in high office. He will not be the last. His people are a rising race—the "coming men" of the time. Their eagerness for knowledge, and their capacity for party organization, as already shown in the elections, indicate that unless Northern emigration shall give the whites ascendancy, the blacks are bound to be the dominant race of the South.

SENATOR SUMNER has again expressed his anxiety to see a negro in the United States Senate, and has written the following letter:

SENATE CHAMBER, July 3, 1868.

DEAR SIR: I have never given any opinion in regard to the Senatorial question in your State, except to express a regret that the golden opportunity should be lost of making a colored citizen Senator from South Carolina. Such a Senator, if competent, would be a powerful support to the cause of equal rights. His presence alone would be a constant testimony and argument. Nothing could do so much to settle the question of equal rights forever in the United States. The howl against the negro which is sometimes heard in the Senate would cease. A colored Senator would be as good as a constitutional amendment, making all backward steps impossible. I write now frankly in reply to your inquiry, and without any purpose of interfering in your election. You will pardon my anxiety for the cause I have so much at heart.

Accept my best wishes, and believe me, dear sir, faithfully yours,

(Signed) CHARLES SUMNER.

To Thaddeus K. Sasportas, Esq., Columbia, S. C.

No one will believe that Sumner is sincere till he writes a letter of the same purport to the next Legislature of Massachusetts, asking that body to elect a negro in the place of Charles Sumner, whose term as United States Senator expires March 4, 1869. The presence in the Senate of a negro from Massachusetts would be quite as "powerful" as that of a negro from South Carolina. If Sumner is really anxious to see a negro Senator, he will lose no time in urging the election of a "colored substitute" to his own seat.

IS THIS GOD'S JUDGMENT?—MRS. Surratt was hung for being an accomplice in the murder of Lincoln. The testimony on which she was convicted was that of four men, Baker, Montgomery, Cleaver and Conover, precious scoundrels. Baker is now a fugitive from justice—Montgomery is in prison for embezzlement—Cleaver has been convicted of an infamous offence, while Conover is serving out a term in the penitentiary. Preston King, who prevented Mrs. Surratt's daughter from seeing the President in behalf of her mother, committed suicide by drowning in the North river, while Lane, who supported King in his conduct towards Miss Surratt, shot himself in St. Louis; and now Stanton, who kept all the records of that trial from the President, at last sneaks out of the War Office like a miserable hound that has been detected in stealing sheep. God's judgments are sometimes slow but they are very sure. The Radical party that upheld this infamous crowd in their rascality, has yet its judgment to receive. That will be done in November next.—Butler Herald.

Mr. Pendleton's Letters.

THE following is the letter written by Hon. Geo. H. Pendleton, of Ohio, to Washington McLean, of the delegation from that State, authorizing the withdrawal of his name from before the National Democratic Convention, whenever it should seem desirable:

CINCINNATI, July 2.

Washington McLean, Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York.

MY DEAR SIR:—You know better than any one the feeling and principles which have guided my conduct since the suggestion of my name for the Presidential nomination. You know that while I covet the good opinion of my countrymen, and would feel an honest pride in so distinguished a mark of their confidence, I do not desire it at the expense of one single electoral vote. (great applause,) or of the least disturbance of the harmony of our party. I consider the success of the Democratic party at the next election of far greater importance than the gratification of any personal ambition, however pure and lofty it might be. [Loud cheers.] If, therefore, at any time a name shall be suggested which, in the opinion of yourself and those friends who have shared our confidences, shall be stronger before the country, or which can more thorpughly unite our own party, I beg that you will instantly withdraw my name, and pledge to the Convention my hearty, zealous and active support for its nominee.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE H. PENDLETON.

SEYMOUR ENDORSED BY PENDLETON.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The following private letter from Mr. Pendleton was addressed to Washington McLean, of the Ohio delegation, and was handed to John A. Green, Jr., on their arrival in New York:

CINCINNATI, June 25, 1868.

MY DEAR SIR: You left my office this morning before I was aware of it. I sought you at home, but you were not there. I must say what I want to by note. As soon as you get to New York see Governor Seymour. You know what was my feeling before and after I heard from him last fall. He is to-day the foremost man in our party in the United States. His ability, cultivation and experience, put him at the head of our statesmen. He commands my entire confidence. I would rather trust him than myself with the delicate duties of the next four years. You know I am sincere. Make him feel this, and that he can rely on me and my friends. I have a natural pride an honest pride, I believe, in the good will of my countrymen. But you, better than any one else, know that it is neither egotistical nor overruling, and that I am really anxious to give up the nomination to anybody who can get one single vote more than myself. Express this frankly to the Governor, but delicately, and let him understand my views of men and measures as I have frequently given them to you. Good bye. God bless you.

Yours, GEORGE H. PENDLETON.

To Wash. McLean.

How $1,000 Stuck to Butler's Palm.

[Washington Cor. Baltimore Gazette.]

MANAGER BUTLER is fearfully indignant at the charge that he attempted to appropriate a thousand-dollar bill of Woolley's money. The following is the statement, as received from the witness himself:

Butler—What became of the money Woolley left in your hands?

Witness—I have it in my pocket.

Butler—Produce it and the papers contained in the envelope.

Witness—Here is the money, but the papers you can't have.

Butler received the package of money and directed witness to leave the room which he declined to do, saying he was responsible for the money and was not willing to leave it in Butler's hands. Butler threatened to arrest him, but witness denied his right to do so. At last Butler proceeded to count the money, and said: I find here $16,109.

Witness—I'll swear I handed you $17,109.

Butler—Then you had better count it yourself.

Witness—If you will raise that newspaper, I think you will find a thousand dollar bill under it.

Manager Logan now for the first time interfered and remarked: Yes, General, I see a corner of the note sticking out.

Butler—Oh, yes; I did not see it.

This statement of the testimony has been made public on the authority of the witness, a gentleman of known integrity, and is the topic of general conversation.

NORTH CAROLINA LEGISLATURE.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 14.—The General Assembly proceedings have been unimportant until to-day. According to a resolution adopted in a caucus held last night, the General Assembly today elected John Pool, of Pasquintock, United States Senator for the long term until the 4th of March, 1873, and Gen. J. C. Abbott, formerly of New Hampshire, and now of Hanover, for the short term which expires March 4th, 1872. The contest in the caucus was very close between Abbott and Dockery.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 14.—The Legislature to-day elected Thomas J. Robinson United States Senator for the short term and F. A. Sawyer, who is collector of Internal Revenue for the long term.

The Lieutenant Governor was inaugurated to-day.

So far nearly all of the Senators and members elected by the negroes in the Southern States have been natives of Northern States, Freedmen's Bureau Agents, Governments employees, and itinerant preachers.

WHERE, oh! where, is Hiram U. Grant, General etc., Some time since we read of his departure for the West; but since then the "loil" newspapers of the sections through which he is presumed to have passed, have not chanted his praises in any manner, however lowly nor has the ready telegraph chronicled his advances. Don't lose him, gentlemen! We would like to see him again by next Fall. Be careful of yourself Hiram, and don't stand on the platform whilst the cars are in motion!

BRITISH OPPOSITION.—The London Journals are all extremely disgusted with the Democratic platform and nominations. Reason, foreign bond-holders don't care about paying tax on their property in this country. Grant is the British bondholders' candidate.

Final Proceedings of the Convention and Closing Scenes.

THE fifth day's session of the Democratic National Convention ended the arduous and complex labors of that most able body. From ten minutes to twelve on Monday to ten minutes after twelve on Thursday, through three days of time and twelve hours of continuous session the delegates were in deliberation to seek to name a candidate. The results of day after day have been told in these columns. It only remains to sketch the final proceedings of Thursday.

At 10:25 the Convention came to order. The Rev. Dr. Plummer delivered a most impressive prayer from a heart wrestling with the perils that encompass the land, and from a mind steeped in the weird and wonderful poetry of the prophets and psalmists of old time. Such a petition, in its comprehensiveness, severe simplicity, directness, and beauty of conception and of diction has been rarely heard. It was as appropriate to the time as it was remarkable in itself. The report of it will justify and excuse this reference to it. The attention of the Convention was deep and solemn, and the memories of the eventful day will always be appropriately prefaced by the impression the prayer made on the mind and feelings of every one present.

Mr. Pendleton's letter of withdrawal was then read to the Convention. It is found elsewhere. The reception given it was such as marked a most profound respect for the high, unselfish motives that prompted it, and which breathed through it. The first step towards agreement was believed to have been taken. The significance of the date of the letter, showing it to have been prepared to meet contingencies which had not occurred at the writing of it, was generally commented upon, and was an item in the events that went to show how deep was the determination to secure harmony—a harmony essential to, and an assurance of, success.

Several subsequent ballots only demonstrated an inability to concentrate on any of the remaining candidates. Yet the skirmishing was not long, and was gone through with expeditiously. The courtesy of New Jersey's voting for Field, to repay a partial prior preference California had shown for Parker, was a polite event. Hendricks and Hancock ran high, but the distance between them and the two-thirds was too great to inspire much hope in immediate results and a very little in ultimate outcomings.

Shortly after 11 o'clock, Ohio, which had been finessing between Hancock and English, asked leave to retire. It was granted. Massachusetts also retired. Two large States were thus out. A recess of fifteen minutes was ordered by the acting President, Gen. Thomas L. Price, of Mo., in which the Convention acquiesced by general consent. That something was being born could easily be surmised. What the issue would be was a matter of as much apprehension as uncertainty. In the interim the remaining States mingled among one another, and awaited, with the anxious audience, the tortuous tide of events. The recess exceeded the quarter of an hour. This did not diminish the trouble of mind, to say the least. It was adding delay to doubt. At last Massachusetts came back, followed by Ohio. The Convention settled to silence at once. The twenty-second ballot was ordered. Alabama and Arkansas led off as of old for Hancock and Hendricks respectively, and all the States, including Massachusetts, did the same. Surely this was no change. New York still voted for Hendricks. That was an ancient story. New Jersey and Nevada told the same tale. Were not things going as before? It looked so. "State of Ohio!" thundered Mr. Perrin. The Chairman of the State delegation arose. He did not merely stand in the aisle, as had been his practice, just to announce votes and then sit down. He got up on a bench. This ment a new move, as palpably as in the act it was a new move. He straightened himself, did General McCook, rolled back his sleeves from his cuffs, ran his fingers once through his curly black hair, and, with the deportment of a man who had struck an idea, sprung a discovery, or found a gold mine, branched forth into the speech, which turned the tide of the time. What that speech was in its emphatic brevity is elsewhere seen. It gave Ohio's twenty-one votes, heretofore wedded to Pendleton, to Horatio Seymour, of New-York. McCook the delegate, the audience, and Governor Seymour, were at that supreme juncture well worth contemplating. The first was erect, calm, and yet impressively animated. The delegates and the audience were lost between a desire to applaud, and a greater desire for the time to hear General McCook through. Governor Seymour sat in the President's chair, as cool as a statue, yet giving the utmost attention to every significant word. Neither nonchalance nor concern, neither anxiety nor apparent satisfaction were to be read in his face. The exact attention the Chairman gave to all the business was noticeable. No more, no less. When General McCook concluded, the galleries and the floor began their speech. It was not so connected, but one word—"hurrah"—with all the particles of applause and all the gestures of hands, heads, and bodies, with which mighty multitudes, mightily moved, express themselves. The spectacle from the stage was magnificent. The billows of people surged and roared as any literal sea. The folks were frantic, the delegates were daft for the while. The enthusiasm was without precedent. All other enthusiasms were as the babbling of brooks to the eternal thunder of Niagaar. The delegations acclaimed with a volume vast enough almost to fill the very States they came from. The whole mass of men were given over to acclaims which cannot be even suggested in print The reason of this is the same reason that moved every Democrat to the same tendency when he heard the news, whether he lived in Florida or in Oregon. When Governor Seymour had at last a chance to speak, he positively declined the honor, for reasons he has stated before, and in doing so made an allusion to Mr. Pendleton and to his State, which was one of the most graceful that ever fell from any man on any occasion. But it was no use. Not only Ohio insisted, but every State in review insisted, with a rapidity and an emphasis that will be seen in the report. It was almost impossible to do business in routine order, so soon as the real result was found. It is useless to attempt description of the circumstances. Such cheers, such rounds of acclamation, such universal joy, such assurance of success as men manifested cannot be told. It was one of the effects that are so great as to be appreciable only by those who were witnesses and sharers of them. The great party had unanimously named its greatest man to possess its greatest honors. A strife of days had resulted in a union. The Presidency had sought him who had persistently refused to seek the Presidency. Him who was not a candidate, all had compelled to be a candidate. The suddenness, the spontaneity of the act, were equal to its propriety. Everyone took these considerations home to his mind. Every heart spoke in every voice, and every voice spoke in immeasurable joy. It was the most extraordinary applause of this century, greatest in its volume, deepest in its meaning, most exciting in its incidents, most varied in its expressions. Live a century, and the like will hardly be heard again.

While all this was going on Governor Seymour retired. A recess of one hour was taken.

The afternoon session consisted of only one act; that was the unanimous nomination of General Frank P. Blair of Missouri, for Vice-President. Every State voted for him as the man, just as every State had voted for Governor Seymour for President. The dramatic incidents of this act were the successive endorsements of General Blair by his foes in war and in peace his friends, Generals Preston, Wade Hampton, and N. B. Forrest. The words they spoke were generous, noble, and straight to the purpose. When, at their close, Generals Steedman, McClernand, and McCook clasped the hands of the Southern Generals, the scene was too affecting for immediate applause. All the heroic and the fraternal in human character, and all the knightly in human nature were called from their deep seats to the surface. The Convention was stirred to its very heart. When the applause did come, as come it did in mighty thunders, it came as the lighter sequence of deeper emotion.

Radicals Who Support Gen. Grant.

Tilton—He has called Grant a drunkard,

Phillips—He has called Grant a drunkard as "brainless as his saddle."

Sumner—He says Grant is not an "irreversible guarantee," and "made a whitewashing report to fortify Andrew Johnson."

Chase—"Grant is a man of vile habits and of one idea."

Anna Dickinson—"I am going to England to get out of advocating this bungler."

Mrs. Stanton—"Grant says nothing and knows less than nothing."

Wilson—"I will never, so help me God, support any but temperance men for office."

Greeley—"The Presidency requires a man of ideas and a statesman."

Colfax—"I declare in advance no doubtful person shall have my ballot for President."

Kelly—"I will die in my tracks before I will subscribe to this whitewashing report of this man (Grant) who has joined his testimony, and will join his fate to that public enemy, (A. JOHNSON.)

Old Thad—"Never ask me to support a twaddler and trimmer for office."

Geary—"Drunkards, like pirates, are public enemies."

Frelinghuysen—"The nation owes to itself respect to tolerate imbecility in politics no longer."

Wade—"Grant knows nothing of politics * * He can talk nothing but horse."

Yates—"I own I have been a drunkard; I will be one no longer; nor will I longer cast my lot with such men."

Good out of Nazareth.

SENATOR CAMERON EXPOSES A RADICAL FRAUD.

WE find the following in a late exchange:

Mr. Cameron, in the United States Senate, Thursday, indignantly informed his Radical friends that the Government has paid to two newspapers $80,000 apiece, $80,000 in all.

Mr. Sherman—What papers?

Mr. Cameron—The Chronicle and the Evening Star of this city have been paid, or will be paid, for the printing of last year, under the section which we passed last year, that amount. The greater part of that advertising was for the purchase and sale of articles so far beyond the circulation of those papers that none of them could ever reach the people who were interested. For instance, there were $1,500 or $2,000 paid for an advertisement as to the publication of mail contracts, in the Territory of Arizona. There was a large sum of money paid for an advertisement asking proposals for a fort somewhere down in New Mexico. I think there were half a dozen mules, or something like that, to be bought in Idaho, and they were advertised here; and in some cases the advertisements were published here a day or two before the sale or purchase to be made at those remote places. This is an abuse which would shock the community if they knew it; but nobody seems to know anything about it. We hardly know it ourselves.

Will "Republicans" please make a note of this? The men who are thus squandering the people's money, ask you to vote for Grant and a continuance of such swindling.

New York.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Another intensely hot day, mercury ranging from 98 to 100 in the shade. Numerous cases of sun stroke in the city during the last four days—no less than 200, of which at least one-half have proved fatal. To-day 48 cases are already reported, of which 18 were fatal. All the street railroads are compelled to run a less number of cars than usual on account of the loss of horses by the excessive heat. Travel in the city is thereby considerably interfered with. The health officers have issued stringent orders, with the view to preserve a good sanitary condition of the city. Many persons are escaping the city, and every train and boat which leaves is crowded with passengers.

Communicated.

JUST before going to press, the following was handed us for publication:

CATAWISSA, July 15, '68.

EDITORS COLUMBIAN:—I desire, through the columns of your paper, to contradict a report now being circulated that in the event of my being elected a Member of the Legislature this fall, I would oppose the re-election of Mr. Buckalew to the U. S. Senate. The long and unbroken friendship existing between Mr. Buckalew and myself is sufficient to stamp this report 28 false. I would not accept the nomination if I could not give the Senator my support, which he so eminently deserves.

Respectfully Yours,
GEO. SCOTT.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DEBILITY.

There is no medium equal to Hoofland's German Bitters in cases of debility. It imparts a tone and vigor to the whole system, strengthens the appetite, causes an enjoyment of the food, enables the stomach to digest it, purifies the blood, gives a good, sound, healthy complexion, eradicates the yellow tinge from the eyes, imparts a bloom to the cheek, and changes the patient from a short-breathed, emaciated, weak and nervous invalid, to a full-faced, stout and vigorous person. "Hoofland's German Bitters" is entirely free from all alcoholic admixture.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC

Is a combination of the ingredients of Hoofland's Bitters with pure Santa Cruz Rum, orange, anise &c., making one of the most agreeable and pleasant preparations extant. The tonic is used by those requiring a good and scientific stimulant. Principal office, 631 Arch St., Phila.

Sold by all Druggists. June 12,'68.

The reason why Mishler's Herb Bitters cures so many different diseases, is because it is the best remedy for a deranged stomach, or Dyspepsia now known, and because it invigorates the entire system, strengthens the nervous fibres, elevates the standard of all the vital forces and sustains a most healthful tone of the entire human organism. Medicine that will do this will cure any disease for the simple reason, that nature will do the rest.

We guarantee that no woman or child, however pale and emaciated, can use these Bitters regularly for twenty-one days, without the return of the rosy cheeks and fair complexion characteristic of good health. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

Dr. S. B. Hartman & Co., Proprietors, Lancaster Pa., and Chicago, Ill. ja 15-1y

The great amount of time consumed by the ladies in dressing and arranging their hair before making any article which would lessen their labor particularly desirable. Ring's Vegetable Ambrosia leaves the hair in such condition as to render dressing and arranging a very easy matter. It imparts to it that splendid glossy appearance so much admired, cleanses the scalp from dandruff and all impurities, and prevents baldness; promotes its growth and restores gray hair to its original color. it

THE "MESSENGER OF HEALTH,"

Edited at the Pennsylvania Institute of Medicine, contains an article on Dyspepsia, Chills and Fever, and Kidney Affections, in which the writer positively declares that the whole science of Medicine possesses no remedy for the cure of those diseases, that is half so efficacious as Mishler's Herb Bitters. He speaks from experience, having used them in his practice for the past two years, to the exclusion of all other remedies, and without a solitary instance of failure.

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ASSIGNEE'S NOTICE IN BANKRUPTCY.—In the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania, in the matter of Silas D. Edgar, bankrupt. To whom it may concern: The undersigned hereby gives notice of his appointment as assignee of Silas D. Edgar, of Espytown, in the county of Columbia, and State of Pennsylvania, who has been adjudged a bankrupt upon his own petition, by the District Court of said District.

Dated at Bloomsburg, the 17th day of July,

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, FRIDAY, JULY 17, 1868.

We are greatly obliged to Esq. Reeder of Franklin, for a quantity of delicious strawberries.

The audit in the estate of Joseph Hayhurst is Friday, July 31st. Those interested will bear this in mind.

During the past week the weather has been terribly hot; the Thermometer in places touched 105° in the shade. We almost envy the Alaskians.

Wanted—A girl to do housework—one whose services are worth two dollars per week preferred. Apply to Mrs. Elwell, Third Street, Bloomsburg.

There will be a meeting of the Democrats of Bloom township to-night, in the Grand Jury Room, for the purpose of forming a Club for the ensuing campaign.

The following has been a propitious week for the farmers and the most of them have succeeded in harvesting their crops in good order. As a rule they are good.

We have been presented with a stalk of timothy, by Thomas Knorr of Bloom township, which measured six feet six inches in length. This is rather the tallest Timothy we ever knew.

The Normal School Building is progressing rapidly. Its success shows the advantage of pluck and drive, as compared with the slow rate of other buildings. We hope the friends of the enterprise and of education will act upon Governor Geary's advice and subscribe and pay to the work liberally.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. Stephen Gearhart of Mifflin had a fine horse killed by lightning. His house was also struck on the same evening, although without causing serious damage. A gun which was standing in the room where his children were sleeping was struck and utterly destroyed, but the children were not harmed.

Horribly Hot Weather, it has been of late, but Lowenberg is as cool as usual, selling his linen coats and summer goods to heated men. Lowenberg is a public benefactor, as any one is who does as much to alleviate the sufferings of his fellow men. Do not fail to stop and get one of those famous light coats of his. They beat ice cream for coolness.

A Good Example.—A lady friend sends us five new subscribers accompanied by the cash. She says she cannot vote but she can aid in circulating good Democratic documents among the people. We are well aware that the ladies take a deep interest in the pending political contest, and such aid is not only sensible, practical, but entirely within their province.

Organize!—Organization should be the watch-word among our friends everywhere. Our platform of principles is laid down, and our candidates nominated so there should be no further delay. Every Borough and Township should have its Club. Printed Constitutions &c., will be furnished by Col. John G. Freeze, Chairman of the Standing Committee.

Michael Kanouse, an old subscriber writing from the town of Bronson, Branch Co. Michigan speaks in very favorable terms of the crops this season. He says there is a prospect of heavy wheat crops, and that corn looks finely. He quotes prices as follows. Wheat $2 00 per bushel, Corn 75 cents per bush. Oats 60 cents per bush. Flour $11 to $12 per bbl. Bronson is a thriving town in the heart of a fine farming country, on the line of the Southern Mich. R. R.

A short time since a canvass of Bear Creek township, Luzerne county, was made, and but one Radical was found in it. He offered to move out and leave the township unanimously Democratic, for fifty dollars. This was a pretty high price for such stock, but the Democrats raised the money and he left, leaving the township unanimously Democratic. The last heard from him he was trying to negotiate with his old neighbors for permission to return, on condition that he will vote the Democratic ticket.

A serious and painful accident happened on Monday last, to Edward Rahn the obliging and gentlemanly clerk of the Exchange Hotel of this place. He had removed the cylinder from one of the Smith & Wesson revolvers, and whilst engaged in replacing it, the pistol was discharged—the ball entering the left hand near the base of the forefinger and lodging in the bone, where it yet remains, efforts to remove it having proved unavailing. The wound though painful will not cause the loss of the use of his hand.

The Stevens House.—During the recent session of the Democratic National Convention, we stopped at the Stevens House. It is located at the foot of Broadway, in pleasant proximity to the Battery, and in the heart of the business portion of New York City and accessible by omnibuses to all parts of the city. It is kept on the European plan; that is, a man pays so much for a room, and can eat when and where he pleases. The proprietors are pleasant, affable men, and will do all in their power to make their guests comfortable, We would recomend our friends to try them.

Pensions to Old Soldiers.—The Auditor-General, lately, transmitted to the State Treasurer full lists of old soldiers of the war of 1812 and their widows, of Pennsylvania, whose applications for pensions under the act of assembly of 1868, have been examined and adjudicated. In a few days these lists will be re-copied and classified by the clerks in the treasury department, and transmitted to the various county treasurers, with the funds requisite to meet the demands of the heroic veterans and their widows, who will all be paid at their respective county treasuries. Those who have not heretofore received pensions, either under the act of 1865 or under special acts, will be paid sixty dollars, including forty dollars gratuity and twenty dollars for one half year's annuity. Those who have not heretofore received pensions under the act of 1865, will only receive twenty dollars. The balance of the annuity for 1868, will be paid by the first day of January, 1869.

There has been a very general strike among the miners in Schuylkill, Carbon and Luzerne Counties. The workmen in Conyngham Twp. this County have also been visited by a deputation of strikers and Freck's and Gorrell's Collieries stopped. The men claim the benefit of the eight hour law; that is, that they should receive as much for eight hours labor, as they have heretofore received for ten. The rumors of collisions and bloodshed are unfounded.

THE WEEKLY PATRIOT.
It is the determination of the proprietors of the Patriot to make their weekly journal fully equal to what the "Patriot and Union" was in its palmiest days. It will be one of the largest weekly papers in the Commonwealth, and special pains will be taken to fill its columns with such reading matter as will be alike interesting and useful to the Farmer, the Mechanic and the Man of Business, and to make it an agreeable and welcome visitor in every family.

Every person should subscribe to the paper printed in one's own county, and we do not mean to enter into competition with the local papers of the State. But, many people take their home paper and a city paper in addition. To such we send greeting.

CLOTHES BY MACHINERY.
The undersigned would respectfully call the attention of the public, to his new and approved method of making clothes by a system based upon mathematical principles, which renders it impossible to be otherwise than perfectly accurate He claims for this method the following advantages.
FIRST.
Perfect accuracy.
SECOND.
A saving of two thirds of the time usually taken to cut out the cloth.
THIRD.
Ability to measure any figure so as to insure a good fit.
FOURTH.
That it does away with the necessity of being measured more than once, as often is the result from the misapprehension or mistake of the measurer.
He would urge the public to give it a trial, as he is satisfied that it will give perfect satisfaction. He will be happy to exhibit and explain its working at any time to visitors.

SCHUTZE & LUDOLFF,
(ESTABLISHED IN 1850,)
Manufacturers of the new patent MONITOR PLATE PIANO FORTE, patented February 25th, 1868. Warranted for five years.
Warerooms, 25 Broome-St., New York.
The patent Monitor Plate Pianos by their peculiar construction, are superior to all others, and their merit comes in the sound board being supported by the iron frame, allowing a larger space for the sounding board than is possessed by any other kind of Pianos, by this means the quantity as well as the quality of the tone is largely increased.
These Pianos have been pronounced by the best judges to be unrivalled for POWER AND SWEETNESS OF TONE,
Easy and responsible touch and beauty of finish. Most patterns, specimens of excellence from Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strakosch, Vieuxtemps, and a large number of the most distinguished Professors and Amateurs. From long experience and superior facilities for Manufacturing, we are enabled to offer our Pianos at as low prices as are asked by inferior manufacturers.
Send for descriptive circular and price list.

RAW BONE
SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME,
A STANDARD MANURE FOR ALL FIELD AND GARDEN CROPS.
Having within the past year greatly increased and improved our facilities for grinding bones and manufacturing, we are prepared to offer a supply of SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME, a superior article for our immediate home consumption.
Our Phosphate has been thoroughly tested the past season by practical tests of our farmers and dealers, and elsewhere, and in every case the result has been entirely satisfactory.
Our process of pulverizing, whereby it is rendered
TO PASS THROUGH ANY DRILL,
obviates an objection which attaches to many fertilizers, and secures to the farmer a saving of much valuable time.
Sold at the manufactory EAST MARKET STREET SUNBURY, Pa., and by our agents throughout the country, in bags of about 200 lbs. each, at $45 per ton.
Also SHELLED PHOSPHATE in bags, prepared expressly for the use of Corn, at $50 per ton.

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTORIES
Warerooms, No. [illegible] Broadway, New York City.
22 Years Established, and 27 Prize Medals Awarded.
Our Piano Fortes are now universally acknowledged by the most distinguished artists to be the best in use. Many of these artists have been tried and proved, and wherever they have say one equal to their letter.
Handle pianos constantly on hand of other makers; and from the large sales we have effected, and improvements made by us in the last thirty years, are enabled to offer a first-class Piano Forte for $200 to $250 less than a similar one can be bought elsewhere.
Every Piano Forte warranted for 5 Years, and to give Satisfaction.
Our Pianos are made to last; the materials used in every part are thoroughly seasoned, and of the very best quality that can be procured. No part is slighted; what the public eye might pass over, never escapes our vigilance. Every part, inside and out, is honestly, faithfully and thoroughly made, and that is why it will bear the most minute examination. The touch, tone, the lond, sustaining and even tone of the whole scale, is unsurpassed by any other Piano, and grows more even every day. Imitations, delightful in its singing capacity, and sings of the power necessary to produce every desired effect.
They are, without doubt, the best, the most lasting, and consequently the cheapest. We are content with a fair profit. Any piano from $300 to $1000. April 21,'68-3m.

TO FARMERS!
PACIFIC GUANO COMPANY'S OFFICE
PACIFIC GUANO.
THE ATTENTION of Farmers and other consumers of Fertilizers is invited to the Pacific Guano, which is now being introduced into Pennsylvania, Virginia and other States. It is manufactured from the Guano Deposits of the Pacific Islands, and is a pure and concentrated Ammoniated Phosphate of Lime, containing a large percentage of Phosphoric Acid, and is free from all adulterations. It is a dry powder, and can be applied through any drill. It is offered to the farmers of Pennsylvania at the same price as the Peruvian Guano, and is guaranteed to contain more than double the amount of Ammonia and Phosphoric Acid contained in the Peruvian Guano, which has been analyzed by the best chemists in the country, and pronounced to be the best fertilizer in use. Pamphlets containing analysis, directions for use, and testimonials from farmers who have used the Guano, can be had on application to the undersigned, or to the Agents throughout the State.

Can We Manure Too Much!

To get an idea of the benefits of manure, we have but to notice the plowing up and planting of cow-yards. This probably every one of us has seen. This ought to be sufficient to impress us with the benefits of high manuring. We remember several such instances, in all of which there were crops that could not well be surpassed. Roots, corn, and even grass, were raised almost in miraculous quantities. Grass was green early in the spring, when there seemed to be not sufficient heat to start it. But it grew at once, and was cut when other grass was not yet in head. Three heavy cuttings we have known in such case, in which there could not have been less than two tons to the cutting on an average per acre. So the corn yielded a hundred bushels; the roots enormously.

Now this is all owing to great fertility. So much manure, covering the ground each year for many years without cropping, would seem to be altogether too much. But is it? Are not such crops an equable return? Does it not pay to manure so if you can get such returns? Yes; not only do these cattle yards prove this, but old barn sites do the same. We have known these to show the benefit for fifteen years—and not only decidedly, but to large remunerative crops. This shows how lasting a soil may be made.

Manure is the best investment a farmer can make. It is a safe investment. It will not run away; it will not evaporate; it will, if a comprehensively rich soil, raise any grain—any thing you may apply to it. It will always sell,—and need we say for what price? If a little manure pays, double the quanity will pay double, and so on. How then if this is doubled a score of times? There is a score of benefits. There is a point, it is true, where this must stop—where a crop will yield no more, if more manure is applied. But who has ever found this point?

The truth is, we never manure enough. If we would double, quadruple our crops, we can readily do it by using the means—which is manure. There is other treatment of the soil which has its advantages, but manure is the main reliance, without which there is no farming.

Clay Around Apple Trees.

PROBABLY no fact in agriculture has been more clearly shown than that clay mixed with the soil around the roots of old apple trees, where the soil is naturally uncalcareous and sandy, will act more effectually in reviving the system when old. Dig up or remove the soil to the depth of six or eight inches—the deeper the better, provided the roots are not too much exposed by the operation, and fill in the cavity with a mixture of loam from the woods and pulverized clay, in equal proportions. After filling in with this mixture, spread on some wood ashes and gypsum, equal parts. This will stimulate the most morbid system into vigorous action, and preserve it in a flourishing and fruitful condition for years. If at the same time the bark of the trunk and larger limbs be scraped and cleansed of moss and other parasites—by the application of powerful wash, as for instance house-ley or soapsuds—the circulating system will exhibit increased power, and become reinvigorated without manifesting even the slightest symptoms of disease. I have known many old trees, and more than one orchard resuscitated in this way. In preparing the clay for this purpose, it should be taken from the bed and dried by frequent turnings and exposure to the sun. When the moisture is expelled, it should be pulverized and mixed with the mould some days before it is applied. "Mulching" is as beneficial to old trees, after this operation, as to young ones newly-transplanted. For this purpose, straw affords a valuable material; and so, also, do spent tan and forest scrapings.

Corn Culture.

THE season being backward, with more rain than usual, great care will be required in the proper cultivation of corn, now to keep the soil as light as possible and perfectly free from weeds. Frequent stirring of the soil is all important to corn culture, for it renders more readily soluble those organic substances which constitute the proper nutriment of the plant, and also aerates the soil and makes it more readily receptive of moisture. With a large number of farmers, the old practice of hilling has fallen into disrepute, and except on hillsides and rolling land, level culture has been adopted. In some cases the change is undoubtedly for the better; but there are circumstances under which hilling corn may still be the preferable mode, and where the use of the one-horse plough is strictly allowable. As a rule, however, we prefer the shovel-plow and the cultivator, and with the exceptions to which we have alluded, we think flat culture the best. But the main thing in raising large crops of corn is to manure heavily and to till the land thoroughly.

Trouble with Milk.

CAN you give me any explanation or remedy for the turning of a cow's milk into whey after milking? I have a large number of cattle and occasionally some of them will become completely worthless, in consequence of their milk turning into whey. When milked, the milk looks healthy, but after standing a short time a thick curd settles in the bottom of the vessel, the cream rises to the surface, and between the cream and curd a large body of milky water collects, rendering the whole unfit for use. Churning this milk produces sweet milk, which, if left standing returns again to milky water.

THE Springfield Republican publishes the following remarkable effect of the recent dampness: Robert Bachelder, of Salisbury, has a flock of 28 sheep, which during the winter, were housed in a place where their wool became filled with hay seed. They have been out to pasture for several weeks, and the seed has sprouted, and they are now bearing about with them a crop of grass two inches in length.

Rolling Peas for Planting.

IT is stated on good authority—we have never tried it—that putting peas into boiling water for about one minute before planting, the crop produced will be free from the bug. This seems to be an easy and plausible remedy; the parboiling of the seed will also doubtless

For the Young Folks.

The Two Wallets.

EVERY man carries two Wallets, one before and one behind, and both full of faults. But the one before, is full of his neighbor's faults; the one behind, of his own. Thus it happens that men are blind to their own faults, but never lose sight of their neighbor's.

The Heifer and the Ox.

A HEIFER that ran wild in the fields, and had never felt the yoke, upbraided an Ox at a plough for submitting to such labor and drudgery. The Ox said nothing, but went on with his work. Not long after, there was a great festival. The Ox got his holiday: but the Heifer was lead off to be sacrificed at the altar. "If this be the end of your idleness," said the Ox, "I think that my work is better than your play. I had rather my neck felt the yoke than the axe."

The Goatherd and the Goats.

IT was a stormy day, and the snow was falling fast, when a Goatherd drove his Goats, all white with snow, into a desert cave for shelter. There he found that a herd of Wild-Goats, more numerous and larger than his own, had already taken possession. So, thinking to secure them all, he left his own Goats to take care of themselves, and threw the branches which he had brought for them to the Wild-Goats to browse on. But when the weather cleared up, he found his own Goats had perished from hunger, while the Wild-Goats were off and away to the hills and woods. So the Goatherd returned a laughing stock to his neighbors, having failed to gain the Wild-Goats, and having lost his own.

They who neglect their old friends for the sake of new, are rightly served if they lose both.

MOTIVES OF GIVING.—Here is a little fellow at the breakfast table. His father says, "John, you know your teacher tells you that you must deny yourself in order to present an acceptable offering to the missionary cause, now what do you think of doing?"

"I have made up my mind, father; I won't eat salt mackeral for breakfast."

"I am glad, my child, that you are willing to deny yourself anything for Jesus' sake. Why do you select that?"

"Oh, father, I am not at all fond of it it is very easy to give it up, and besides we don't very often have it."

The children appreciate the illustration and smile. Oh! how many boys and girls are very willing to give to Christ what costs them nothing! But Christ is not ready to accept such offerings.

NOT MADE OF GREEN CHEESE.—A gentleman addicted to careless joking told a little girl who was gazing with admiration at the moon that it was made of green cheese. This she refused to admit, but he persisted in the assertion. Having been taught very early to read, she hastened to the Bible as her refuge in difficulty, and perused attentively the account of the work of creation. Returning triumphantly to the charge she said—

"It is not so, for I have read all about how God made the sun and the moon and the stars."

"Very well," he answered, "but does it say the moon was not made of green cheese? you have no proof at all to bring in the question."

"Yes I have, for this was in the beginning, before any animals were made; and if there were no cows, or goats, or any milkgiving creatures, how could there be cheese?"

BRANDY AND WATER.—Drinking brandy and water is quite popular with certain residnts of San Francisco, who have indulged in the habit since the fall of '49 or the spring of '50. Among those given to the habit was a gentleman known to his acquaintances by the sobriquet of "The Major." He liked his brandy and water as well as any one in the world, and indulged in it as often. Some time ago he was stricken down with dropsy, and drew nigh unto death's door. Hearing of his condition, several of his old cronies called upon him for the purpose of advising him to make his will. They found him in his chamber in a very feeble condition, and finally broached the subject which had induced them to visit him. He listened patiently till they had ceased, when he asked—

"Boys, do you ever drink brandy and water?"

Expecting to be asked to take some, they all replied they did.

"'Twon't do, boys, 'twon't do," said the Major; "just look here," he continued, as he exhibited his distended abdomen and swollen limbs. "I tell you it won't do. I have been drinking it for the past twenty years, and you see what I have come to; the brandy has evaporated and left the water on my chest, and it's going to kill me. 'Twon't do to drink anything but brandy!"

A CHEERFUL FACE.—Carry the radiance of your soul in your face. Let the world have the benefit of it. Let your cheerfulness be felt for good wherever you are, and let your smiles be scattered like sunbeams, "on the just as well as on the unjust." Such a disposition will yield you a rich reward, for its happy effects will come home to you and brighten your moments of thought.

Cheerfulness makes the mind clear, gives tone to the thought, adds grace and beauty to the countenance. Jaubert says. "When you give, give with joy and smiling."

Smiles are little things, cheap articles to be fraught with so many blessings both to the giver and receiver, pleasant little ripples to watch as we stand on the shore of every day life. They are our higher better nature's responses to the emotions of the soul.

Let the children have the benefit of them; those little ones who need the sunshine of the heart to educate them and would find a level for the buoyant natures in the cheerful, loving face of those who lead them.

Let them not be kept from the middle aged, who need the encouragement they bring.

Give your smiles also to the aged. They come to them like the quiet rain of summer, making fresh and verdant the long weary path of life. They look for them from you who are rejoicing in the fulness of life,

Be gentle and indulgent to all. Love the true, the beautiful, the just, and holy.

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

HOOFLAND'S

GERMAN BITTERS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,
AND
Hoofland's German Tonic.
Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
The Great Remedies
FOR ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, STOMACH, or DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Hoofland's German Bitters

Is compounded of the pure juices, (or as they are medicinally term ed, Extracts) of Roots, Herbs and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcoholic admixture of any kind.

Hoofland's German Tonic,

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

Hoofland's German Bitters.

In cases of nervous depression, when some alcoholic stimulus is necessary,

Hoofland's German Tonic

should be used.

The Bitters or the Tonic are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues. The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Debility, etc., is its functions de sult of which is, suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhea, Disease of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,

RESULTING FROM ANY CAUSE WHATEVER;
PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM,
INDUCED BY SEVERE LABOR, HARDSHIPS, EXPOSURE, FEVERS, ETC.

There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the Whole System, the Appetite is Strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

Persons Advanced in Life,

And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.

It is a well-established fact that fully one-half of the female population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; or, to use their own expression, "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN

Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.

Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Those, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

Hon. Geo. W. Woodward,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., Writes

Philadelphia, March 16, 1867.

"I find 'Hoofland's German Bitters' is a good remedy in cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system.

Yours truly,
"GEO. W. WOODWARD."

Hon. James Thompson,
Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 28, 1868.

"I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it.

Yours, with respect,
"JAMES THOMPSON."

From Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, D.D.,
Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but, regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear conviction in various instances and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates St.

From Rev. E. D. Fendall,
Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.

I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable remedy to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.

Yours truly,
E. D. FENDALL.

RING'S
Vegetable Ambrosia,
FOR GRAY HAIR.

This is the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Man who was bald and gray,
Who now has raven locks, they say
He used the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Maiden, handsome and gay,
Who married the man once bald and gray,
Who now has raven locks, they say
He used the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Parson, who, by the way
Married the maiden, handsome and gay,
To the man once bald and gray,
But who now has raven locks, they say,
Because he used the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Bell that rings away
To advertise the people and pay
For this fact, which here (is) (set) forth
If you would put (a) (bald) or gray head
Use the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

THE AMERICAN HAY KNIFE AND FORK.—We the undersigned citizens of Columbia County witnessed the trial of hay forks on the farm of Mr. Pursel, in Hemlock Township, on Monday, May 7, 1866, between the American Hay Knife and Fork manufactured by SLIFER, WALLS, SHRINER & Co., of Lewisburg, Pa., and the Rundel's Patent Hay Hook. The American Fork lifted more hay in one day, and think it cannot be beat as a hay knife, and cheerfully recommend it as the best hay fork and knife we have ever seen.
